Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

The applicant's information disclosure statements dated 8/31/2006 and 8/14/2007 have been considered and a copy has been placed in the file.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Applicant's prior art Figure 7 (sample no. 3) in view of Japanese patent no. 10-026231 to Nagasawa. All of the elements of the instant invention has been discloses as being conventional as discussed in the background of the invention and as shown in Figure 7 except providing projecting ridges to be scalene triangle in shape. Japanese patent no. 10-026231 to Nagasawa discloses a weather-strip (as shown in Figures 2 and 3) having projecting ridges to be scalene triangle in shape. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to provide the ridges on applicant's prior art Figure 7 with scalene triangular ridges as taught by Japanese patent no. 10-026231 to Nagasawa since scalene triangular ridges provides extra rigidity between the ridges and the lip as well as decreasing the friction between the sealing lip and the frame/closure to be sealed.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Several patents have been cited which disclose projecting ridges similar to that of the applicant's invention.
